

BOOTY call

Moma, $675,
at Gravity Pope

Frye, $395,
at Atomic Model

Frye, $475,
at Gravity Pope

Go west, young woman – the cowboy boot is back and steaming up the style scene with true Tex appeal.

You can blame a lot of things on Jessica Simpson, such as turning a so-bad-it's-good small-screen classic into just plain bad, but sorry, not this one.

Trend-setting celeb Sienna Miller roped in cowboy chic long before the General Lee made its comeback. Back home on the range, however, we're just catching on.

When to go western: Right now! Pull on a pair of boots with denim cut-offs or a mini, but please no big belt buckles and tied-above-the-navel gingham blouses. It's less about saddling up and more about strutting your stuff.

City slickers balance country with a long flowing camisole or a pretty empire-waist prairie dress. And for fall, get your kicks by tucking skinny jeans into boots.

Think this is one fad that won't make it north of the border? 24 hours recently spotted several urban cowgirls in the stylish stomping grounds of Yaletown who would have had Daisy putting up her dukes.

- Carly Baillie, 24 hours

Fly London, $395, at Gravity Pope

John Fluevog, $380,
at Gravity Pope

Mag, $350, at Gravity Pope

Mag, $269,
at Intra-Venus

Frye, $375,
at Atomic Model

- photos: Kristin Bradford, 24 hours